Preface

This edition of The Vintage Bulletin is the thinnest that the Editor has ever produced. In part, this is due to the lack of material but more importantly has been brought about by other factors. These include tidying the front and back yards at home, complying with Bushfire Prevention requirements at the shack; and readying the house for Christmas lunch. There have also been an extra couple of cricket matches requiring his attention. So, for a time the Car Club has had to take a back seat. That will change in the New Year.

No need to mention the Test Match. Our games are far more interesting. Anyway, the S A Cricket Association has been recruiting new Members; and the numbers exceed the capacity of the ground to seat them ... or so it seems to the Editor. For the first time in his life he left the Adelaide Test at lunch on Day One, having been forced to watch the game on a small screen in one of the kiosks. Not Happy!

There will be an Early Birds' Run in January. Members will receive an email seeking information so that the route chosen will suit the vehicles participating..

In local cricket, the boys are still at the foot of the table on Saturdays. Never mind, they are doing better in the T.20 games on Tuesday evenings. All young, the lads play reflecting the lack of patience apparently characteristic of their generation. It works sometimes!

Anyway, that's what I think.

Meanwhile, I extend Greetings to all Readers for a Happy, Safe Christmas and New Year.

Wayne Wood

The following is the late John Chapman's Editorial in the December 1996, (Volume 44 Number6), issue of The Vintage Bulletin.

Just as relevant now as it was then.

"Hello Folks!

The end of another year is upon us and, as usual, your Editor is way behind with his festive preparations so this must, of necessity, be a brief editorial.

It seems to be inevitable, at this time of the year, that the road toll increases in almost direct proportion to the number of people on holiday, and I think that much of this can be attributed to the false sense of security perceived by motorists who drive the modern car.

Almost hermetically sealed from the rush of wind and isolated from the busy mechanical sounds of the engine, the modern motorists rush along the country roads with little to occupy their attention apart from the latest rock music blaring from the cassette player. Lulled into a soporific stupor by the gentle breeze from the air conditioning, and warmed by the sun through the almost horizontal windscreen, it is all too easy to lose that sharpness of reflex so necessary in today's traffic and at today's speeds.

The vintage motorists faced none of the dangers of high speeds that beset the modern driver, yet they had so much more to keep them alert. The wind in the hair and the roar of the slipstream. The throaty burble of the vintage exhaust. The rattle and clash of pistons, valves and timing gears. One eye on the oil pressure gauge, another on the speedo or rev counter and yet a third on the road surface ahead in an attempt to spot the shackle-breaking pothole. Hands gripping the wooden steering wheel, the vintage motorist hauled the bonnet mascot round corner after corner, where the modern driver, with power-assisted steering, need only think left or right and the insulated Capsule immediately responds to command.

We have the advantage of having driven a real vehicle, rather than a transportation capsule. Let us use this experience to ensure a safer driving experience for ourselves over the Christmas New Year break. Don't become a statistic. Use your vintage driving skills to remain alert and conscious of the other road users around you. Leave the demon drink out of the fuel tank. Give consideration and courtesy to your fellow road users.

May I wish all our readers a Very Happy Christmas and a Safe and Prosperous New Year.

Happy Vintage Motoring until next time
John Chapman, Editor"

Letter to Father Christmas

Dear Father Christmas

Last year I expressed my view that the Club seemed to have “run out of puff”; and that “Hopefully 2025 will see greater enthusiasm for Club runs and events; and that interesting General Meetings will be the norm”.

Well, matters deteriorated and some members left. However, a new Committee was formed and people stepped up and arranged a series of interesting guest speakers at General Meetings. These were well received and we welcomed members of other clubs who attended. Next year we intend following up with some visits to selected businesses and workshops.

The Down Under London to Brighton Run was one of the best yet, according to many commentators. The weather was perfect too. As in the past, the Veteran Car Club supported us with an interesting contingent of Veteran vehicles. That was balanced by the 100 year old Vintage Cars which are now eligible to participate in the Run. Inclusion of these Vintage vehicles has added interest and new supporters whilst not diminishing the focus on the Veterans.

The Committee is now working to resurrect the Historic Motor Vehicle Gathering to reflect its original intention, which was to show pre-1930 vehicles to the public. In doing so, it recognises that it may be necessary to extend the range to include more modern vehicles. On that score, a number of clubs have committed to support the Gathering in 2026.

I understand that, due to age and ill-health, in 2026 attendances at our Club runs and meetings will be smaller than in the past. Nevertheless I am confident that the Club will continue to function for the benefit of its Members and the Vintage Car movement.

Meanwhile, take precautions against Global Warming up your way and ...

Keep Smiling

A gift from a Son to his Dad

What is it?

Perhaps in place of a pine tree for next year, it could be festooned with lights at Christmas?

Perhaps a light tower for the paddock so that rabbits might be easier to spot from the verandah?

Perhaps worth a few bob as scrap metal?

Perhaps a piece of paddock art?

Christmas Presents?

From Rex

From Rex:

"Who manufactured this sports car?"
